

Criteria for external experts

The external expert is supposed to provide an independent report on the PhD thesis of the candidate. Thus, he or she should be an active researcher in the field of the thesis, but not a partner of the research team of the candidate (no common publications). The expert is an experienced researcher with a reasonable publication track record working outside the University of Basel. Exception can be requested to the PhD Board.